CASE AGAINST MCBRIDE AND AFONG DISMISSED BY U. S. COMMISSIONER

RESUME OF LEGAL TANGLE INVOLVING JEFF MCBARN AND CLAUDIUS MCBRIDE

On the afternoon of May 5 last, following a hearing of the Freeman Sylvester conspiracy case, District Attorney Jeff McCarn, conducting the prosecution, and Attorney Claudius H. McBride, counsel for the defense, engaged in an affair in the corridor of the federal building, at which time blows were struck and the district attorney is declared to have displayed a revolver.

The following morning, May 6, the district attorney appeared in the police court under arrest on a warrant sworn to by McBride, charging him with an assault with a weapon "obviously and imminently dangerous to life." McCarn was released on a bond of $1000, his bondsman being L. L. McCandless.

The members of the federal grand jury, in obedience to a hasty summons, met in the federal building Thursday morning, May 7, and from 10 until 12:30 o'clock discussed the matter regarding the alleged assault by the district attorney.

On May 25 it developed that the territorial grand jury would probe the McCarn-McBride affair. It also became known that on the previous Saturday a subpoena had been served on McBride to appear before the territorial body.

On June 1 members of the local federal bench commenced communication with Attorney-General McReynolds in the matter.

On June 8, Alexander Lindsey, Jr., was appointed special assistant to the attorney-general with orders to make a thorough investigation of the McCarn-McBride affair.

The territorial grand jury on June 11 returned an indictment against McCarn charging him with an assault with a weapon on Claudius McBride. The district attorney was released on his own recognizance. He selected a counsel composed of five attorneys. He pleaded not guilty to the charge in the indictment. Attorneys for McCarn gave notice of intention to file a motion to quash. Later, this motion was denied. After this motion was denied, and action in the territorial court awaits the settlement of jurisdiction between the two tribunals.

The territorial court has brought the matter of jurisdiction before the federal court, each court desiring to hold the first trial. The matter will remain undecided until the return of McCarn.

In the interim the matter was progressing in the federal court, and the grand jury completed. The federal grand jury returned an indictment against McCarn June 24, charging him with an assault with a weapon on McBride.

On June 27 McCarn pleaded not guilty to the indictment returned by the federal grand jury. A motion to quash the indictment was filed by McCarn's attorneys, based on the ground that the jury was "incompetent" and "unlawfully constituted." This motion was denied by Judge Charles F. Clements.

The trial of McCarn in the federal court was set for August 10, but will be continued owing to the absence of the district attorney from the territory.

In the trial of Joseph A. Doyle and his wife, Maude School-Doyle, the prosecution of which was conducted by McCarn, McBride was named as counsel for the defense. The first trial resulted in a hung jury. The case comes up for re-trial next Monday morning.

At the instance of McCarn, William L. Welsh and Charles Reynolds were arrested Saturday afternoon, July 18, on a charge of violating the white slave act. Both were released on bond and a hearing before U. S. Commissioner C. S. Davis has been set for September 4.

Late Saturday afternoon, July 25, McCarn caused warrants to be issued for the arrest of Claudius McBride and Henry Afong, charging them with a violation of the white slave act. The defendants were released on bond, their case having been dismissed by Commissioner Davis this morning.

Counsel for Afong and McBride stated today that it was possible each would bring suit against McCarn for "malicious prosecution."

Defendants Contemplate Suit Against McCarn for Malicious Prosecution

The case of Henry Afong and Attorney Claudius H. McBride, who were arrested Saturday afternoon and Sunday morning, respectively, upon warrants sworn to by District Attorney Jeff McCarn, charging them with a violation of the white slave act, this morning was dismissed by United States Commissioner Charles S. Davis. The action was taken by the commissioner following the refusal of the district attorney to cable to New York City for the immediate return to Honolulu of Edward M. Offley, said to be a material witness in the matter.

Following the dismissal of the case, Attorney Robert W. Breckons, counsel for the defendants, stated that McBride and Afong are contemplating bringing civil suits against McCarn on the ground of malicious prosecution. As another development, in a statement to the commissioner, the district attorney is said to have intimated that upon his return from Washington, D. C., he will place the case before the federal grand jury for investigation.

At the commencement of the hearing before the commissioner this morning the district attorney, in view of his contemplated trip to the national capital, requested that there be a continuance of the case until after his return. Commissioner Davis stated that he was willing to give the government a reasonable continuance, and then asked the district attorney to cable Mr. Offley to the effect that he proceed immediately to Honolulu. The district attorney, however, refused to do this, stating that he wished the summons to be carried through a subpoena which already has been issued.

FORTUNE ALLEGED TO AWAIT HEIRESS UNKNOWN TO HAWAII

Where is Miss Irene Mae Faust, alleged heiress to a Hawaiian fortune of $300,000?

What is the story behind the ostensible search in New England for Miss Faust?

These are questions asked by those who have heard that persons calling themselves the law firm of "Batchelder & Funston of Honolulu" are representing that a plantation owner by the name of Emil Faust has left a fortune to his daughter and that she has been traced to Lynn, Massachusetts. The following article appeared in the Boston Herald of July 14:

"A number of Lynn business firms and their employees have been enlisted in a search for Miss Irene Mae Faust, now an heiress, who is sought by attorneys in Honolulu, Hawaii, in order that she may receive her inheritance."

"A reward of $100 to the person who can furnish information as to her present whereabouts yesterday was offered by Robert K. Batchelder, senior member of the law firm of Batchelder & Funston of Honolulu, who has come to New England to look for her."

"Atty. Batchelder says that an estate of about $100,000 has been left to Miss Faust by her father, a plantation owner."

"The young woman is believed to have worked for the P. J. Harney Company, perhaps for the A. E. Little Company, both of Lynn, and is believed to have been affiliated with the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union. The lady attorneys and other women's organizations are assisting in the search."

"Miss Faust's father, Emil Faust, died in Hawaii three months ago. His daughter was traced to Lynn by letters found among his effects. Atty. Batchelder announced yesterday that if she can be found she will not need to go to Honolulu for her fortune unless she wants to see her father's grave."

No such law firm as that mentioned is known in Honolulu or in Hawaii. The question was asked today if there can be anything in the way of a shrewd game behind the representation in New England that there is a fortune of $100,000 awaiting the girl who can prove her identity."

NATIONAL GUARD TO RETURN HOME THIS AFTERNOON

Medical Corps Officer Completes Militiamen on Sanitary Condition of Camp

(Special Star-Bulletin Correspondence)
HEADQUARTERS, 1ST REGIMENT (in Camp Near Red Hill), July 29.—This is the last day in camp for the boys of the National Guard and active preparations for the return trip, which will land the regiment in Honolulu at 4 o'clock this afternoon, were well under way at an early hour this morning.

Lieut.-Col. William R. Riley issued orders to strike camp before the noon meal in order that the canvas, wet from the heavy rains of last night, might be afforded an opportunity to dry out before being rolled for transportation to the army.

Short periods during the morning were devoted to company drill under observation of the inspector-instructors, all of whom were in accord in their expressions of satisfaction at the showing made by the members of the militia organization.

Capt. Robert McDonald, medical corps, U. S. A., gave an interesting and instructive talk to the officers of the guard last night on the subject of "Camp Sanitation."

Captain McDonald stated that this was the first time he had ever been in camp with national guard troops and that he had been given to understand that no attention was paid by the guard to modern sanitary methods of handling the camps. In this respect he stated he had been most pleasantly disappointed. He complimented the officers of the guard on the excellent method in which they had handled the sanitation problem and at the same time gave them several valuable hints by which they will

REPORT SHINGLE ON IRWIN SITE DEAL IS DENIED

He Sails on Unannounced Mission for San Francisco—Said to Be Sugar Business

Robert W. Shingle, president of the Waterhouse Trust Company, sailed on the Matsonia today on an unannounced mission to San Francisco. He told friends just before leaving that he expects to make the round trip on the Matsonia.

A persistent rumor had it that Shingle's trip is in connection with the federal building site and that he is going to arrange some sort of a deal in connection with the Irwin King street property, which is offered for the federal site. This rumor is denied at the Waterhouse Trust Company, where it was stated this morning Shingle is on a private mission, that of arranging some sugar contracts with the Western refinery.

The federal building site bill is still dragging along in Congress. At last reports it was in the hands of a subcommittee of the house committee on public buildings and grounds, but it should have been reported back to the main committee by this time. The bill will probably be somewhat changed in the house and if it passes at this session must go to conference, having passed the senate already.

The Irwin site is generally looked upon as the probable choice of the treasury department. The department has shown an inclination to deal directly with the property owners, according to those who know, and it was said today that Shingle's visit to San Francisco is not to confer with the Irwin interests there. The local representatives of the Irwin interests, particularly E. I. Spalding, are said to be the ones through whom any deal locally would be made.

At any rate, he fears that his chances on Hawaii are going to be much diminished by Rice's tour of the Big Island, which will end this week. Rice is reported as having been decidedly successful on his tour.

Delegate Kuhio, accompanied by Rev. Stephen L. Desha and former Representative J. P. Hale, sailed for Kauai yesterday. They expect to return on Sunday morning.

Palmer Woods was due to sail on the Mauna Kea this morning, having failed to land the land commissioner.
